Content

In the modern clinic, more and more patients are presenting with strange and complex conditions not well treated by Western medicine or by zangfu theory alone. In many cases, a profound knowledge of Wen Bing theories and treatment principles is required to achieve good results.

Wen Bing school is often only mentioned briefly and the knowledge transmitted barely scratches the surface. This class will give you a profound insight in the history and development of the Wen Bing school, and will open new doors to clinical efficacy.

Besides introducing the Wen Bing theory and key Wen Bing treatment strategies Greta Young will also explain how Wen Bing theory has significant clinical relevance not only for febrile disease, but also for many other non-febrile diseases. You will learn how to use Wen Bing formulas and the principles, so that you can produce effective results in both common and uncommon conditions, including autoimmune disease.

- Discussion and application of latent pathogen theory and collateral damage theory
- Explanation of the underpinning theories of the principal formula patterns
- Contemporary application of Wen Bing theory and formulas
• Modifications and use of specific strategies
• Clinical applications and case studies in the modern clinical setting

Shang Han Lun and Wen Bing

Shang Han Lun and Wen Bing are often regarded as separate systems, which you can employ either-or.
As Greta Young Jie De is too an international reknown Shang Han Lun expert, she will teach you, how Wen Bing is based on the Shang Han Lun and how the formulas and treatment strategies have been developed over time to meet new challenges. A considerable number of important Wen Bing formulas have either already been employed in the Shang Han Lun, e.g. Bai Hu Jia Ren Shen Tang, or are modifications of Shang Han Lun formulas, e.g. Hao Qin Qing Dan Tang.

Additionally Greta Young Young Jie De will demonstrate how formulas from the Shang Han Lun can be combined with Wen Bing formulas to treat many contemporary diseases.
